NEW LONG-RANGE WING IS COMPACT, DESTRUCTIVE UNIT

Is Combined Battle Experience of World War II and Atomic Lessons

HEAVY, LONG RANGE

Groundwork for Atomic Defense of Future Is Being Consolidated

By Lee Van Atta
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

FORT WORTH, Tex., Aug. 28.—(INS)—The battle experience of World War II and the atomic lessons of the B-29 Superfortresses have been combined to produce what is unquestionably the most compact destructive military organization of military history.

That organization is the 58th Very Heavy Bombardment Wing—America's first long range all-atom bombing air defense-assault force.

At full strength, the unit will have the equivalent hammering power of tens of thousands of tons of T. N. T. and will be capable of delivering that paralyzing power to a range, already in sight, of 5,000 miles.

For the pioneering atom bombing wing has no intention of unleashing its strength in half measures. The bellies crammed with the world's most crushing instrument of devastation, six-engined bombers will comb the skies of the globe on non-stop missions should war ever again threaten this nation.

And where Hiroshima, Nagasaki and Bikini were one-bomb laboratory experiments any war of the future will see squadron after squadron of bombers taking off.

There won't be single atomic missiles in the aerial fleets of the future. Today's humanly manned bombers already are exceeding true air speeds of 300 miles an hour. Tomorrow's humanly manned and radio guided bombers will make those speeds seem antique by comparison.

Here at Fort Worth the groundwork for atomic defense of the future is being consolidated by a unit primarily concerned with atomic offense.

But the Army Air Forces, long since convinced that capability of attack is the best guarantee of successful defense, know an atomic

Display Pre-Fabricated One-Room Bldg. Locally

The firm of C. S. Wetherill, Jr., is displaying a type of pre-fabricated one-room building, for which it has accepted the agency. The hut, made in the form of a quarter-cylinder, is suggested for use as a chicken house, tool shed, or as a temporary shelter while a house is being built.

Made of insulated boards, and weather-proof, "it is ready to move into," state the agents, who add that two such huts, with connecting airway, would care for a family temporarily while a house is being erected in these times of shortages. They are also suggested for use as cabins at mountain or seaside resorts.

The huts measure 8x16 feet, the one wall being straight, and the curve then extending from the roof-height to the far edge of the floor. The huts have a door, and across the front are three windows. They have four-inch flooring of the tongue-and-groove type.

The structures can be moved in one piece on a truck, four men being able to handle such with ease. There are not priorities on the buildings.

Bullitt vs. Elliott

—by—

SAMUEL R. PETTINGILL
"The Gentleman from Indiana"

As the victorious allies quarrel like savages to make peace with each other in this united world, Elliott Roosevelt informs us that if his father had lived, all would be well. Former Ambassador Bullitt says that President Roosevelt's foreign policy was bankrupt before he died. Whether Bullitt, in his position as Ambassador in Moscow and Paris during the seven years before the war, was in a better position to judge than Elliott in Texas, the impartial reader must judge for himself.

In this battle of the books, the united world will split into more warring camps. No doubt the controversy will rage for years as various soothsayers, astrologers, oracles and examiners—of entrails, champion one side or the other. Somebody always has to be the goat when the winners lose a war. World War I was lost, we are told, because the U. S. Senate refused to ratify the League of Nations. Well, that alibi no longer exists. Elliott blames God this time. The President, he implies, was cut down, like Moses, in sight of the Promised Land. I don't want to be sacrilegious in this matter, but I'm glad this time that the blame, just or unjust, can't be put on the American people. In good faith, they sent a quarter million of their sons to die for the Atlantic Charter and various other slogans and shibboleths.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Australia and Russia denounced each other yesterday at meetings of the Conference of Paris that continued to make little progress. The Australians accused the Russians of "lying," of attempting to intimidate the small nations and of delaying the work of the conference. Soviet delegates attributed the delay to Australia, which had submitted scores of amendments that Foreign Minister Molotov said had been inspired by other unnamed countries.

One of the principal causes for the outburst, Australia's effort to bring Russia's bilateral reparations arrangements under scrutiny, seemed certain to fail.

The Foreign Ministers' Council is expected to meet, probably tomorrow, in an effort to expedite the work of the conference. Secretary Byrnes agreed to the session on condition that no attempt would be made to dictate to the delegates.

Moscow recalled its Ambassador to Greece a day after he had protested against press attacks on Russia. Some quarters linked the action to the referendum on Sunday on the return of the Greek monarchy, which will be supervised by Anglo-American teams. The United States Army also will send

"TURN TO THE RIGHT"

Years ago a melodramatic comedy with the above name played to millions of Americans. The phrase, of course, represented a play on words—a sort of pun—on a familiar expression in road directions.

In those days, the term "right" had much simpler meanings than it has today. Then it meant either the opposite of left, or it meant the opposite of wrong.

Now the word is in politics. It is used to imply a point of view towards public problems which is definite enough in general, although far from specific in detail.

The accident of seating members of the French legislative body, plus certain connotations in the words "right" and "left," have tied these terms to new meanings.

The conservative element of French representatives, those who believed in the monarchical system the country had used for generations, sat on the right. On the left were the revolutionists—those who believed that "divine right" of authority lay among the people themselves, rather than in the person of an hereditary king.

In general, "rightists" in politics are those who want to keep conditions "as is." Leftists want to change them. But this broad definition brings amusing results. According to it, the New Dealers are the "rightists," or conservatives of the present, and the Republicans, who consider the present policies a short-cut to bankruptcy and collectivism, and who demand that they be changed, are the true "leftists."

But since the New Dealers started out on a revolutionary scheme, which justified the title of "left," and because the upheaval they began has not yet followed the whole pattern it took in the nations from which it was copied, such as Russia, Italy and Germany, the name continues to fit with sufficient accuracy for everyone's taste.

"Right" and "left" always have been used to carry certain overtones of meaning in the field of morality.

NEW HOPE, Aug. 28.—The 1946-47 term for New Hope-Solebury public school will open on the fourth of September. It is announced.

Pupils will report to the elementary school at Solebury and the high school at New Hope for classes at 8:45 o'clock. GRUNDY MILL TO CONTINUE OPERATION

New Owners Will Operate
Plant in Conjunction With Others They Own

TO INCREASE 1 DEPT

With the announcement yesterday of sale of the mill of the William H. Grundy Company, the passing of the last major Bristol industry from the ownership of Bristol residents into the hands of non-residents was marked.

The mill was purchased by the Crescent Corporation, Fall River, Mass. It will be operated by the Lawrence Manufacturing Company, associated with the Ames Worsted Co., of Lowell, Mass.

It is understood that the new owners plan to build their managerial staff for the operation of the local plant principally from the present Bristol employee lists. The only change in operations that has been planned at the present time is to increase the combing department from one shift to two.

The new purchasers are experienced operators of textile mills, having seven plants in various parts of the Eastern seaboard.

The Grundy firm has been located in Bristol since 1876, coming here from Philadelphia and leasing the mill erected by the Bristol Improvement Company under the then firm name of Grundy Brothers & Company.

The senior partner, Edmund Grundy died in 1884, but the firm name remained unchanged for two years. In 1886 the firm was reorganized under the name of William H. Grundy & Company, Mr. Campion retiring.

To Confer with Jews and Arabs Separately

London—A Foreign Office spokesman said today that British representatives will confer separately with Jews and Arabs attending the conference on Palestine opening in London Sept. 9th.

The objective of the separate talks, he said, is to bring the two groups face to face in the final stages of the conference.

The spokesman said there was no indication that the United States will send observers to the conference. This, he added, is regretted in official quarters.

He gave as his opinion that the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Amin El Hussein, will not attend the conference as an Arab delegate.

Participation of the Moslem religious leader, who supported the Axis during the war, has been vehemently protested by the Jews.

Bodies of U. S. Airmen En Route to Frontier

Ljubljana, Yugoslavia—The motorcade escorting five gold and white coffins, containing the shattered remains of four U. S. airmen who were killed on Aug. 19 when their transport was forced down in Yugoslavia, left Ljubljana this morning en route to the frontier.

Although Yugoslav physicians and medical technicians have been unable to present any positive proof that the bodies of all five airmen have been recovered, they believe from the manner of the crash that there is no doubt all five men died. Therefore, a fifth coffin has been added to the original four.

Escorted by a Yugoslav guard of honor, the coffins will be handed over to U. S. Maj. Gen. Bryant Moore, commander of the 88th Division, at the frontier village of Avazica.

Hail Stones Pile Two Feet High in Upper Bucks

PLUMSTEADVILLE, Aug. 28.—A hail storm which lasted one hour visited this section late Monday afternoon. The hail gave a wintry appearance to the farm of Mrs. John Bell along state highway 611. The hail stones, she reports, ranged up to a half inch in diameter.

Willis L. Heacock, who operates a lumber yard nearby, said the stones rolled off the roof of a storage shed into piles two feet high.

The hail shredded corn and other crops on the Bell farm. The area affected by the storm is about a half-mile square.

ONE MAN'S OPINION . .

By Walter Kiernan
(Distributed by International News Service)

The automobile industry hopes to produce five million 1947 cars. . . This hope is the same as the 1946 model hope.

Production is still away below 1941 production but the industry has made one gain. . . It now has more back seat drivers than at any time in its history.

Everyone I know has his name on half a dozen lists. . . If the industry is figuring each deposit as a definite sale we're going to be the first six-car people in the world.

One fellow put his name on so many lists he got confused and last week he received a card reading "Your nyelons are here . . . come and get them."

RULES FOR LONGEVITY

Journalistic tradition has it that the first assignment a reporter ever got was to pose the leading question to a gentleman named Methuselah: To what do you attribute your longevity?

Unfortunately, history does not record Mr. M's reply because, in view of the fact that there were no telephones in those days, the reporter failed to make the last edition of the day of the interview and the newspaper he toiled for ceased publication the following day.

Despite this, the damage was done and the precedent established so that every gazette since then has printed at least one interview in which the ancient subject has made a stab at explaining why he achieved the age of 90 or 100 plus before rigor mortis set in.

Some have said it was because they abstained from spiritus frumenti, eschewed tobacco and went to bed regularly at 8 p. m. Others said it was because they indulged in copious quantities of spiritus frumenti ever since they were qualified to vote, chewed and smoked tobacco and went to bed irregularly and unsteadily at 8 a. m.

Confronted by such evidence, the layman is inclined to believe that there is a slight discrepancy. Even the doctors are baffled unless they choose up sides and decide for themselves which exception proves what rule.

Now relief is in sight for those who would know the truth. A New York nonagenarian—plus-seven responded to the question in this wise: "To the fact that I was born so long ago." This answer is close to the bull's eye, but a perfect hit, certified by the National Archery Association, will not be scored until a solitary centenarian from New Zealand shall, in the midst of a vast solitude, take his stand on his broken arches on London Bridge and reply with a catarrhal cackle: "I don't know."

A FEELING OF FOOTBALL

There's been a crisp bite in the air and a blanket or two feels good at night. From Chicago comes word that in addition to five Western Conference schools at which practice was under way last week, Notre Dame will start practice this week. And so will Ohio State, Northwestern, Minnesota and Michigan.

No need to say, perhaps, that this is football talk. Any man who ever wore a shoulder pad or a raccoon coat knows that the time is all but here when some swivel-hipped lad from a steel mill or a farm, the ball tucked firmly in his arm, will dash headlong into the arms of pigskin destiny. Then for years afterward the lad's buddies and fans will warm themselves before the fires of autumn and talk heatedly of that great day.

Peace, it's wonderful!

Explanations by Congressmen accused of hobnobbing with war contractors that they only wanted $2,500 campaign contributions or to arrange for pinocle parties seem to bear out the suspicion that there are peanut politicians in Washington.

"TURN TO THE RIGHT"

Because nearly everyone was right-handed, doing things with the left hand has seemed the "wrong" way.

Dozens of words carry this meaning. "Adroit" now means skillful; originally it meant "with the right hand." "Gauche," the French word frequently used to mean awkward, really means "left" or "left-handed." A "left-handed compliment" is a phrase for a remark that is critical rather than complimentary. The word "sinister" is merely the old Latin word for the left hand, and "dexterity," meaning the same as "adroit," as well as the less familiar word, "dextral," meaning "auspicious," both come from the Latin name for the right hand.

But in politics today, the word "right" has come to be used as a sort of insult, with the implication that those to whom it is applied are too concerned with the letter of the Constitution to worry about its spirit; and that in their anxiety over the financial mess into which the land has wandered, they are "putting property rights ahead of human rights."

The word "conservative," which, when accurately used, has an exact meaning and one which is rather complimentary than otherwise, has come to be used as a sort of insult. To illustrate the point, "conservation," as used in politics, is a high ideal to which even the New Dealers are eager to pledge themselves—yet conservative, meaning one who believes in conservation, has come to be a shorthand method of brushing aside, with a sneer, arguments which cannot be met in the field of logic.

The division between "right" and "left" in American politics does not by any means follow party lines. Certain self-styled "liberals" bob up occasionally in Republican ranks whose main quarrel with the New Deal program is that they would rather have the doing of it than leave it in Democratic hands.

But the division among Republicans is trifling compared to the range and split among Democrats. The so-called "northern" Democrats, whose strength centers principally in the industrial centers, like to trace their party as starting with Andrew Jackson; they believe in a strong central government, in a big public payroll, in vast Federal spending,—and, while not all of them will admit it, they appear to accept the thought that "debt is good for us," the bigger the debt, the greater the benefit. "Southern" Democrats trace their party to Thomas Jefferson, who said that the least government was the best government. They are disciples of the "home rule" theory. And they are just as worried over the dangers of national bankruptcy, inflation and infiltrating Communism as any Republican could be.

The "right" and "left" split of the Democratic Party is the development which has tied the hands of the present National Administration. The deadlock, not having a middleground for compromise, will continue until the American electorate breaks it by taking part of the power away from the hopelessly divided Democrats.

By every yardstick, the nation today is strongly of a mind to "turn to the right." Even a great body of "liberal" believers in most of the changes which have been made in the last few years agree that we ought to have a "breathing spell" on innovations—that it is time to stop and catch up before trying any more.

No one ever more seriously misread public sentiment and national needs than did President Truman when, a year ago, he committed his Administration to a farther venture into the "Left"—more centralization, more deficit-spending, more regimentation.

His act wiped out the possibility of his holding his own party together, and tied him to a program which is fitted neither to the requirements nor the desires of the American people.

The Truman program would be attractive to an impoverished, "underprivileged" race of people, who (so far as concerns public finances) had "nothing to lose."

This does not describe the American people. We are a nation of "middle-class" people; there are few rich and few poor. Virtually every family is a little "capitalistic unit." It owns real estate, physical property such as cars, refrigerators, etc., and most of them have investments in some form—bank accounts, insurance, War Bonds.

The collectivist theories all are based on a "share the wealth" hypothesis. In this nation the wealth already is shared. Tinkering with the system can only destroy the wealth, or dissipate it by inflation so that the highest wages still won't buy enough for a decent standard of living.

The American people definitely are in a mood to "turn to the right."

Inside Your Congress

Napoleon said, "There is no drug that will make millions light—no drug but words." That's the inescapable truth. The drug called "war" is more potent than "peace." And then, as young men gasp out their bloody froth in the world's hell-holes to make these words and slogans good, the diplomats trade off youth's courage in various secret deals.

I never believed that the Atlantic Charter meant anything, but for the sake of the Gold Star mothers and the blind and crippled boys, it seems as if Mr. Roosevelt might have played out the drama to the end and never told them that the Atlantic Charter was nothing but an unsigned memorandum, hastily discussed and quickly repudiated by Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin with respect to Poland, Finland, the Baltic States, India, Germany, China and so on across two continents.

Now the bloodstained cards are reshuffled and the age-old game of power poker begins once more—for higher stakes.

For years longer than we have been a republic, Russia has tried to get her guns on the Dardanelles. In 1856, the War of the Crimea was fought on that issue. England and France versus the White Czar—now Britain and the United States against the Red czar. Then the battle of Balaklava was fought and the "Charge of the Light Brigade" became a tribute to the heroism of dead young men who were told to believe in words, and were "not to reason why."

Now, with France tired and torn with Communism, and Britain grown senile and socialistic, England stands aside and yields to us the honor of telling Russia to leave Britain's puppet, Turkey, alone. We declare ourselves in on the game and Congress votes $16,000,000,000 for the chips.

Yugo-Slavia, an unimportant country, the size of Oregon, with a population no greater than New York State, shoots down our aircraft with fighter planes Mr. Roosevelt lend-leased her. Behind the curtain, Stalin, with Asiatic cunning, pulls the wires which make the ridiculous Tito "strut and fret his hour upon the stage," and the politicians, living and dead, beat their tom-toms and shriek their incantations to the young men.

Hearing the tom-toms, Bobbs Americanus cheers them on.

Chinese Communists said Government troops were attacking Chengteh, capital of Jehol, in retaliation for the Red siege of Tating in Shansi. Acting Secretary of State Acheson, denying reports that surplus American arms are being sold to China, said this country's policy was to sell materials only for civilian use.

In India, Mohammed Ali Jinnah ordered all Moslem League members to boycott Government meetings as the first move in his "non-cooperation" campaign against the interim regime.

International and domestic uncertainties sent the Stock Exchange into its worst break since May, 1940.

A shortage of freight cars resulting from the war brought eight Government departments into action to avert a transportation crisis this fall.

Eighty-three soldiers were killed and 127 wounded during the war by defective mortar shells, the War Department disclosed.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has been selected to deliver the keynote speech opening the Democratic State Convention in Albany next Tuesday.

Warns Motorists To Guard Against Accidents

Warning to motorists to beware of serious traffic dangers over the Labor Day week-end was issued by the Keystone Automobile Club.

"The three-day holiday," said Edward P. Curran, Safety Director of the Club, "annually results in many avoidable traffic tragedies. Haste is a primary cause of these accidents, with most of the nation's 25,000,000 vehicles on the highways and every driver apparently intent on reaching a resort or returning from one without 'loss' of time.

"We do not suggest that motorists poke along the highways at low speed, because that in itself creates congestion and causes drivers to take chances in passing slow-moving vehicles. Orderly driving within the maximum limit will keep the highways clear of congestion and facilitate the movement of what annually is the greatest holiday traffic volume.

"Main arteries of travel will not be adequate for the number of vehicles trying to use them next Monday night, so it will be the part of wisdom for motorists to acquaint themselves with alternate routes over secondary roads. Another point to remember is that the earlier the start the more opportunity for arriving safely and without undue strain.

"Under all conditions, motorists should not lose sight of the fact that they are part of a great traffic movement and that individual desires must be subordinated to the common good. Horn blowing and other displays of temper will not help the situation."

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Robbins and daughter, Miss Mary Robbins, and Miss Julia Lamont of the Yardley-Newton road spent the week-end at the shore.

Mrs. Raymond Sokolowski, accompanied by her daughter Phoebe Jane, has gone to Chicago where she will join her husband at the home of his parents. Mr. Sokolowski has just been discharged from the Marines. Mrs. Sokolowski is the former Miss Elizabeth Daugherty of Harper avenue.

Expect Listing of New Price Ceiling on Meat

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—(INS)—New price ceilings on beef, pork, lamb and other meat are expected to be announced today or tomorrow to go into effect on retail sales September 9th.

OPA officials said that the new ceilings would represent increases over June 30 levels of six to seven cents a pound for lamb, one to two cents a pound for beef, and at least one cent a pound for pork.

Disagreement between Agriculture Department and OPA officials on what the new prices should be reportedly has held up announcement of the ceilings. OPA was said to favor lower prices than the Agriculture Department.

OPA officials said that the agency necessarily must announce the ceilings either today or tomorrow because they go into effect at the producers' level tomorrow. They are effective at the slaughtering level on Sept. 1st and at the wholesale level on Sept. 3rd.

Meanwhile, OPA exempted or suspended from price control several leathers, polishes and waxes. Among the items removed from control were:

Shoe polish, floor polish, furniture polish, industrial wax, finishes and dressings, American line hemp, hemp tow, flax line fiber, flax tow, and the following leathers: reptile, antelope, deer, peccary, badger, beaver, camel, zebra, ostrich, dog, gazelle, carpincho, viscacha, sharkskin, and pin seal.

Mr. Rotenberger has been taking flying lessons and plans to use his plane for business and pleasure.

Grundy Mill To Continue Operation

The new firm consisted of William H. Grundy, George A. Shoemaker and Joseph R. Grundy. After the death of the elder Mr. Grundy in 1893, the partnership was continued between the other two members of the firm, under the same title.

Mr. Shoemaker retired in December, 1900. Mr. Joseph R. Grundy then conducting the business as the sole owner.

Mr. Grundy retired from active participation in the business in 1937. Since then the business has been operated by the corporation with Floyd Hartshorn as president, and in charge of the New York office, Louis C. Spring, as vice-president, has been general manager in supervising the Bristol plant. Louis B. Whitby has been treasurer of the corporation.

Selling headquarters were located on Front street in Philadelphia. This office will be discontinued.

Mr. Spring will continue at the plant until about the first of the year in an advisory capacity to the new owners.

Mr. Grundy, who maintained offices at the plant since retiring from personal management, will continue to occupy these quarters temporarily, but plans to open a new Bristol office for his personal business affairs shortly.

Under Mr. Grundy's management in 1910 the firm erected a seven-story reinforced concrete storehouse, the first building of its character to be constructed in this vicinity.

For nearly two generations there has been a familiar landmark, especially to those passing on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Much of the adjoining ground was owned by Mr. Grundy, and this was turned into parks. Most of these were deeded to the Borough last winter to be turned into a Community Memorial Park for War Veterans.

The first three stories of the new part of the plant, which is parallel with the canal, are an extension of the main mill.

The building is surmounted by a clock tower, which rises 168 feet four inches from the ground. Atop the roof of the tower is a 35-foot flag-staff.

The tower contains four clock dials, the clock being a hand-mark often called "the Grundy watch." The glass dials are illuminated at night.

Variety of Films Is Shown Bensalem Club

ANDALUSIA, Aug. 28—Bensalem Rotarians, following a vacation from their usual meeting place in King hall, re-assembled there last evening for a meeting. President A. Kurtz King occupied the chair.

William H. Hall, a representative of Philadelphia Electric Co., presented motion pictures. The main feature was titled "Titans of the Deep." This presented many unusual pictures of divers in the ocean depths, and was high-lighted by descriptions and demonstrations of the "Bathysphere" which was used by William Beebe and Otis Barton.

Another film, "Devil Drivers," showed auto racing as it is done in other countries and the United States. A cartoon "Kilo, the Kangaroo," was another presentation. "Dare Devils on Ice" showed exciting spills and methods of getting thrills on ice and snow, such as being towed by horses, airplanes, motorcycles. Activities on skis, bobsledding, also ski-jumping and ice boat racing were included.

The final picture was a Disney film, which advocated better lighting for close work.

Next week Bensalem Rotary Club members will hear "Al" Bauer, sportsman, who is keenly interested in boating, racing, etc.

SHOULD WE CONTINUE?

We've got a problem, and we want you to help us solve it.

It is this: For approximately the last five months we've been closing Monday and Saturday evenings. We made this move at a time when our sales force was greatly understaffed, and we felt that their loyalty and perseverance should be rewarded by giving them off Monday and Saturday evenings.

Today the picture is brighter. And we've been wondering whether you, our customers, would be better satisfied if we again were open on Monday and Saturday evenings.

And for your efforts we're going to reward each of the first 100 persons who write down their opinions and mail or bring them to our store with a beautiful casserole, absolutely free.

Should we, or should we not continue with our present policy of closing Monday and Saturday evenings?

KRETZ TO DEFEND TITLE IN BIG RACE AT LANGHORNE

Is Three-Time Winner of 100-Mile Championship
Event

WILL ARRIVE FRIDAY

Entry of Kretz Indicates A Mad Scramble in The Qualifying Trials

Eddie Kretz, of Monterey Park, Cal., will defend his title when the 100-mile national championship motorcycle race is revived at Langhorne Speedway on Sunday afternoon. The event, an annual feature at Langhorne until the war intervened, was last held in 1941.

Kretz not only is a three-time winner of the championship, but the holder of the record as well. The Coast rider set the standard in 1935 at Langhorne. His time was 71.5 minutes for the 100-mile grind, or an average of 83.49 miles an hour.

Kretz also won the recent 100-mile road race at Laconia, N. H., first postwar title cycle race to be staged. In doing so, Eddie set a new course record, lapping 31 seconds off the previous mark.

Kretz is on his way East. He left Monterey Park yesterday and will ride his cycle on the transcontinental trip, arriving here on Friday.

The entry of Kretz indicates a mad scramble in the qualifying trials scheduled to start Saturday afternoon at one o'clock. The fastest 35 qualifiers will go into the 100-mile national championship, the next 25 into a 15-mile, the next 25 into a 10-mile and the remainder in a 5-mile race.

Earlier entries included Bill Huber, of Reading; Woodie Castonguay, Bridgeport, Conn., and Stanley Witsinski, also of Reading. Huber holds the world's records for a half-mile track at 3, 5 and 8 miles. Castonguay won the first 100-mile race staged at Langhorne, and Witsinski has been a starter every year it was held there.

Langhorne is recognized as the fastest one mile dirt track in the world. Sunday's program is to get under way at 2:30. P.T.C. buses will run direct to the speedway from Frankford and Bridge street.

ST. ANN'S TO PLAY HIBERNIANS

St. Ann's and the Hibernians will meet tomorrow night at the Maple Beach Field for their first game in the deciding playoffs of the Bristol Suburban League. The playoff will be three out of five. St. Ann's will use either Whyne or Keegan, and the Hibos will have Gallagher or Dean on the mound. The game will start at 5:30 sharp.

New Long-Range Wing Is Compact, Destructive Unit

force in effective being is today the most profitable and economical means of preserving inviolate the United States.

The organization of an atomic bombing force, they insist, is no "big stick" maneuvering by America. It is the logical evolution of a plan for the most practical means of employing the world's most modern weapon.

If and when, they point out, United Nations peace police policies are formulated and atomic energy commissions concur in a world law enforcement move, the 55th may well become an international instead of a national offensive force.

Until that unity is achieved, however, long range atomic bombardment, as it is being organized today within the continental United States for employment on a global basis, is the single weapon ready for world combat on what amounts to instantaneous notice.

It is the super M-day force, as such the 55th, through its echelons of higher command, ties in more closely with Washington headquarters than perhaps any other peacetime force of American history.

Its battlefield is the world. Its loads are the atom missiles which destroy cities, wreck fleets and eliminate whole populations. Its operations require the most intimate liaison with science, with diplomatic channels and with developments in other branches of the armed services.

Essentially it is a military force but no one doubts that it is also a formidable political force whether in or out of the United Nations.

In simple words, there has never been anything quite like it. To the layman observer, one of the outstanding features of the mass of striking power which is condensed into the atomic bombing force is the economy of manpower necessary to deliver or to deploy that force to any point in the world.

Only 12,000 officers and men—slightly less than one combat ground division—will be required to man a unit with devastation power unequalled in world history. Those men, however, are and will continue to be the cream of the crop.

They are the ones who flew and who planned the fire bomb raids which brought the Japanese homeland to its knees. More recently, they were the men who planned the air atomic participation in the Bikini experiments—an air operation of minute pinpoint timing precision.

Behind the atomic force proper (the punching force of air assault) come the support echelons. There already has been activated a special long range reconnaissance wing which will be the "eyes" of atom bombing.

America's fastest long range fighters, now assigned to the Strategic Air Command, will provide the escort for daylight missions (although with the tremendous area cover of atom power it is expected comparatively safer night missions will wreak equal havoc on potential targets.)

Finally there is the air materiel command at Wright Field and Oklahoma City which will provide the technical support and the Air transport Command which will guarantee the atom bombers their "lift capability" to troubled areas.

Not only will aircraft, crews and bombs fly to forward bases from their training grounds but so also will the cooks and mechanics, the communications men and the command sections. For atomic bombing, 1946 style, may well sound the death knell of ponderous overwater supply movements by ship.

The 55th, as it moves into combat or into global maneuvers, will travel entirely by air—from commanding general to wing mascot. The groundwork has already been laid in Fort Worth; this year will see the Wing at full air and man strength.

Next year will see it modifying itself for new weapons and scrapping the obsolete before it becomes obsolete. Such a policy, the experts believe, is the surest and least expensive means of insuring modern national defense.

(Tomorrow: What makes an atom bombing team and how it will be trained.)
